B. Reading Comprehension

Read the following passage then choose the correct answer from a, b, c, or d:

Asthma has a long history of evolution before it was categorically defined. The earliest mention of respiratory distress and wheezing was found in 2600 BC in China. It was treated by herbs till the 1950s when some tablets and adrenaline injections were invented.

Asthma is an inflammatory disease of the airways of the lungs. It is characterized by variable and recurring symptoms, reversible airflow obstruction with normal temperatures. It is one of the most common diseases of children, but adults can have asthma,too.

Asthma causes wheezing, breathlessness and coughing at night or early in the morning. Genetic, environmental and occupational factors are main causes for asthma. If you have asthma, you will suffer from it all the time. You will have asthma attacks only when something bothers your lungs. The attack happens in your body's airways, which are the paths that carry air to your lungs. As the air moves through your lungs, the airways become smaller.

During an asthma attack, less air gets in and out of lungs. People can control asthma by avoiding some things that may lead to it or what we can call "asthma triggers". They are different from someone to another, but there are some common ones as tobacco smoke, dust mites, outdoor air pollution, pets, mold, smoke from burning wood or grass, and infections like flu.

Asthma can be treated by breathing some medicines or taking some pills according to the doctor's advice. The effect of these two ways of medication can be either to have a quick-re lief control to ease the symptoms of an asthma attack or to have a long control to have fewer and milder attacks.

Read the following passage then choose the correct answer from a, b, c, or d:

In 1911, Charlie Chaplin, a penniless music-hall artist, left England for America. His future was uncertain, but he believed it couldn't be unhappier than his past. He had grown up in the slums of London. His mother's life was hard; she got mad. His dad died of drink. His parents hoped to be stars. Their son was determined to succeed where they'd failed.

By 1914 Chaplin was famous in America. He was the king of silent movies. How did he reach the top of the film world? He began to develop the character of the tramp that is connected with his name. He borrowed ideas from many sources. He used his bowler hat to signal secret messages and his walking stick to cause confusion and punish his enemy from a distance. He got the idea of famous fat-footed walk from a London taxi driver with sore feet.

Inside the tramp's clothes, the audience saw a human being who was poor, but dreamt of being rich. The audience would be moved by this, but before they had time to reach for their handkerchiefs, Charlie's feet would get in the way and make them laugh instead. Charlie was the master of mime and as an acrobat, he used to perform dangerous stunts. In 1919, he performed his film and wanted to write about his experiences. In "The kid" Chaplin remembered his fear and unhappiness when separated from his mother. On a visit to Britain, the American government refused to give him re-entry visa and he stayed in Switzerland. Aged 86, he went to Buckingham to be knighted by the queen.
